

MAIL BOX IN YOUR BUILDING OR AT YOUR DOOR.

(Not a Central Location away from your building)

Several Years ago, the US Postal Service began a plan to centralize the mail distribution system at individual apartment communities just as the Post Office moved typical mail box delivery to the door of single-family homes to street-side mail boxes.

You have seen those in other apartment communities where “all 100 apartment mail boxes) are centrally located, often under a separate roof in a separate building near central part of the property. This system requires residents to go to the central mail delivery building every day to get mail

Of course, when it is raining as it often does in Florida, to get your mail you get wet.

That situation is ideal for the Postal Service since it saves labor and gas cost. In fact it is so ideal that the Postal Service offered to give us the mail boxes for FREE.

In our case, however, we felt our Residents need special attention. We are able to keep mail boxes of our Residents under the roof of their building or at their front door (if you live in one of our single-story buildings)

We feel it is safer and more convenient for our Residents to get mail in our preferred method.

We also sell stamps, at cost, to our Residents during regular business hours.
